BRING-A-FRIEND WEEK, HALLOWEEN EDITION

Every active member can bring one person to train free all week. Run it the week before or the week of Halloween depending on where it falls. 2026 is perfect: the week leading up to Halloween. Bonus points for a little trunk-or-treat party to cap it all off.

“Boo” = anybody

Partner, friend, sibling, coworker, whoever. Keep it vague on purpose so single folks play too.

Internal only. No ads.

You're asking your best customers for a favor and making it easy and fun to say yes.

Limited capacity = built-in urgency

Capping guest spots per session lets you put real scarcity and urgency behind your registration deadlines.

THE PARTY IS THE EXCUSE. HERE'S WHAT ACTUALLY GETS YOU MEMBERS:

1

You pick two numbers BEFORE announcing: the member reward and the boo offer.

2

Members sign up a NAME + a SESSION TIME (not just a name), so your 5:30am doesn't turn into a zoo.

3

Somebody sits down with every boo who comes in and walks them through the options before the referral offer expires.

PS: we've had clients CRUSH bring-a-friend weeks. Execute on this and you'll up the energy in your gym and drive sign-ups before you hit the holidays, all while making your members more likely to stay and pay because they have more friends training with them.

4 DECISIONS BEFORE YOU TOUCH THE COPY

Lock these in first. Everything else (emails, scripts, cheat sheet) just plugs them in.

1

Boo Day or Boo Week

- Week = Mon–Sat. More bodies, more moving parts. The default if you want more opportunities and have staffed a bring-a-friend before.
- Day = one Saturday session. Probably only the move if you've got a large group model with a ton of capacity, or you just want to do the absolute minimum.

The rest of this playbook is written for the week. Boo Day = same thing: skip the mid-week emails and say "Saturday" where it says "all week."

Member reward what they get if their boo joins

OUR REC

Your existing referral reward, with a bonus for boo week. Give $50 → Give $100 for the week. Give $100 → Give $200 (or $150) if you've got the margin. Doubling it for one window pours some gas on your referral fire before the holidays.

- No referral program? $50 if avg membership is under $200/mo, $100 if above.
- Alt that's worked: a $50–100 gift card to a local restaurant or coffee shop instead of account credit. Something they can't already buy from you, plus an excuse to ask that business to put your QR code by the register.
- PAY IT THE DAY THE BOO JOINS. Doing it in front of people is great social proof and incentive, if you're comfortable making a little show of it.

OPTIONAL (WE'D DO IT): THE DRAWING

Every boo who shows up = one slip with the member's name in a jar at the desk. Draw one the Monday after boo week for something bigger than the standard reward (free month, big gift card, hoodie + a month).

No tracking, no automation. It's a jar. Announce it at every session and in the member group.

3

Boo offer what the guest gets if they join THIS week

OUR REC

Same $ as the member reward off month one. Waive your start-up fee too if you charge one, but say that at the close, it doesn't go in the automations (the Boo Offer value is a dollar amount only). An alternative is legacy member rates, but $50–150 off for someone pre-sold should be an easy sale. Bonus points for throwing in some supplements or light merch.

- Set an expiration date: either Saturday (the 31st in '26), or Wednesday if you want a few more days for the “gotta ask my spouse” folks.
- If you're going with Wednesday, say it from day one. Don't quietly extend it after, or the next deadline you send gets ignored.

4

Halloween or not

If you're catching this at a different time of year, this is absolutely a valid play for other windows (e.g. Valentine's Day). The bring-a-friend concept still stands. We'd run 2–3 of these per year.

DO THIS ON PAPER BEFORE YOU ANNOUNCE

The one way this play hurts you is overloading your best sessions. Paying members get a worse session and guests get a bad first impression, at the same time. So yes, a little planning and some simple math.

✗ Option A: Wing it

Hope you don't get that many people. Probably not the move, unless you've got huge capacity across all sessions or your member base isn't very engaged and you don't expect more than a handful of referrals.

Option B: Boo spots inside your normal capacity

"We typically have two spots open in X session and three in Y, so we'll have two boo spots for X and three for Y." Boo sign-up is tracked per session time, and once they're full, they're full.

Option C: Extra boo spots on top WE LIKE THIS ONE

Leave normal registration as-is and build in additional spots per session based on your comfort level. If you normally run a 6:1 pod model, could you run a partner-workout format for a week, adjust programming slightly, and let everyone bring somebody? Probably. (Good problem to have.)

BOTTOM LINE: PICK ONE

- Add up your normal capacity per session and set a limit for each (e.g. 2 in session A, 3 in session B), or
- Lock a flat number per session that either blocks normal registration or sits on top of it.

Then put that cap in your member messaging to drive scarcity and urgency. Create an artificial cap even if you have theoretically unlimited capacity in a large group model.

2026 DATES

Halloween = Saturday, Oct 31. Boo week = Mon Oct 26 – Sat Oct 31.

Oct 5	Make the 4 decisions + do the capacity math.
Oct 7	Staff meeting. Cheat sheet posted. Everybody practices the live announcement and talking points out loud once.
Oct 12 Day -14	Announce. Email 1, SMS 1, VIP post 1. Posters up, sign-up sheet on the whiteboard.
Oct 19 Day -7	Email 2, SMS 2. Post which sessions are filling.
Oct 21	Roster check. Steer people to open sessions.
Oct 23	Waivers pre-loaded, jar out for the drawing, decorations up if you're doing them.
Oct 24	Confirmation text to every registered boo.
Oct 25	Email 3, SMS 3.
Oct 26 GO	Boo week starts. Morning-of text to that day's boos. Boo count on the whiteboard.
Oct 29	Email 4, VIP post 3.
Oct 31 Last day	Last day + Halloween. Costume class if you vibe that way. Conversations. Photos. Buddy rate expires tonight.
Nov 2	Wrap-up post, drawing winner, member rewards paid.
Nov 13	Owner calls every boo who came in and didn't join: "You came in during boo week, wanted to hear what you thought." About a third pick up and talk.

Not 2026?

Pick the Mon–Sat week that includes Halloween. If the 31st lands on a Sunday, use the Mon–Sat right before it. Count back 14 days for the announcement. Everything else hangs off those two dates.

Found this late?

Say it's Oct 19. Compress it: decide today, Email 1 + SMS 1 tomorrow, coaches ask every member in person, Email 3 on day 5, confirm boos day 6, go day 7.

05 PROMOTION

ONE EMAIL IS NOT A LAUNCH

Multiple, multiple reminders. Every channel you already own, every session.

INTERNAL (YOUR MEMBERS)

- Email + text your member list (copy in section 08)
- Sign-up sheet on the whiteboard with NAME + SESSION TIME columns
- Announce at EVERY session (script in section 06)
- VIP Facebook group / member community
- Posters at the desk + in the bathroom
- Boo count on the whiteboard during the week. Big number, updated every session.
- The drawing: mention it at every session and in every member-group post. Slip in the jar every time a boo shows.

BOOS (THE GUESTS)

- Confirmation text when registered
- Morning-of text the day they come in
- Nurture after visit 1 (copy in section 10)

WHY IT MATTERS

Those two texts are what boost your show rate.

WHAT YOUR TEAM SAYS

ANNOUNCE AT SESSIONS · EVERY SESSION, STARTING 2 WEEKS OUT

COACH, BEFORE WARM-UP

"Quick one before we get started. Week of [DATES] we're doing Bring Your Boo. Every one of you gets to bring somebody to train with you free all week: partner, friend, coworker, your mom, whoever. Just tell me their name and which session you're bringing them to so I can save the spot. We cap guests per session so it doesn't get crazy, so if you've got somebody, let us know ASAP. And if they end up joining, you get [MEMBER REWARD]. [Only if doing the drawing:] Plus every boo who shows up gets your name in the jar for [PRIZE] at the end of the week. So think about who you want to bring and let me know!"

Individual sign-up convos

When a member gives you a name, confirm the session time too: "Love it, which session are you bringing them to?" Then write both on the sign-up sheet in front of them.

The desk line

Every member, every day: "Who are you bringing to boo week?" Not "did you see the email." Assume they didn't. Get the name AND the session time and write both down.

GET CLEAR ON THE TWO NUMBERS

Every coach says [MEMBER REWARD] and [BOO OFFER] the exact same way. Two people quoting different numbers is how you lose a sale you already had and have to awkwardly walk something back. Put both on the cheat sheet and have the team read them out loud at the staff meeting.

When a boo asks “how much is it?” on Tuesday

Candidly, the boo probably already knows what you charge, so pricing likely won't be a shock. But you do need to decide how your coaches handle it, and every coach handles it the same way.

Path 1: Give quick options on the floor

⚠️ Only do this if you've got a simple sign-up process with a couple of options, your coaches have time between sessions, and you have a proven history of converting people with a quick options conversation. If that's not you, use Path 2.

COACH

“Hey, thanks for asking! You loving it already?” [wait for the yes] “Awesome. So here are the options [show the 2–3 options]. Most folks get the best results with [BEST OPTION], and as a referral you get [BOO OFFER] off your first month... Which one makes the most sense to ya?”

Path 2: Book a quick call

If your coaches are terrified of asking for money, your sales process is complicated, or there's just no time between sessions:

COACH

“Oh hey, you loving it here already?” [wait for the yes] “That's awesome. Hey, I've got to get set up for my next session, and there are lots of options. I want to make sure you have time to look at what you need. Can I get you booked for a quick call with our owner later today? They'll take you through everything, and because [REFERRING MEMBER] brought you in, you get [BOO OFFER] off your first month. You got any time later today for a quick call?”

Book the boo on the calendar right then. A call is ideal here: they've already been in once or twice and they're excited, or they wouldn't be asking about price. Making them drive back in for what's likely a quick sign-up isn't worth the headache. Book ASAP. Same day, or even catching them on the drive home.

DAY 1 FOR A BOO

Greet by name at the door

"You're here with [MEMBER], right?"

Waiver

60-sec tour

Intro to 2 members by name

- The 60-second tour = the bathroom and where to put their stuff. The two things every new person is quietly worried about.
- Introduce them to two members by name, not just the coach.
- Mini consult + mini onboarding if you don't have much info on them: "So, are you currently working out or just getting started?" If they're active, get a feel for their routine and whether they need to be pushed or throttled back. If they're a rookie, use the "3-4 on a scale of 1 to 10" talk (walkthrough in the Circle course video) and follow up after the session.
- 7-touch execution (in the Circle course): every member, boos included, gets a minimum of 7 individual interactions by name, every single session. Group cueing doesn't count. Coach your ass off.

ON THE WAY OUT

"Hey [NAME], great job!

[Specific compliment, e.g. you killed it on the PICK-A-MOVEMENT]. Quick question, because we always touch base at the end of day one to customize how we're coaching everybody: how'd that feel intensity-wise? Too much? Too little? Or did we Goldilocks ya today? Because you're coming back Wednesday, right? We can make those adjustments based on how you're feeling."

You're confirming visit 2 and giving yourself a chance to adjust to where they think they need to be to enjoy the experience.

LAST DAY: IT'S A SALES CONVERSATION

Run it like one, even if it's abbreviated. We highly recommend whoever does your consults handles these, especially if your trainers are afraid of money conversations.

THE MAJOR POINT

Get everyone who attended at least twice on the calendar ASAP. Same two paths as the price question above: a convo on the floor if you have time, or a booked call. Worst case, coaches catch them on their last session and book the call.

POSSIBLE SCRIPTING

Your normal trial verbiage works great too if you're comfortable and successful with your own process.

- 1 Recap. "So you came in with [REFERRING MEMBER] Monday, you've been in 3 times, and [the thing they did, e.g. you pulled a deadlift Wednesday you didn't think you had in you] . How are you feeling about it?" Let them talk.
- 2 Future pace. "If you kept this up, what changes for you?" Let THEM say it. Whatever they say here is what you say back to them at the close.
- 3 The options. One boo offer, 2-3 memberships. Pull out your normal options sheet. "Here's the deal for folks who came in this week: [BOO OFFER] off your first month, good through [DEADLINE] . Most folks who train like you've been training this week go with [OPTION] , but here's what we've got [walk the 2-3]. Oh, and [REFERRING MEMBER] gets [MEMBER REWARD] when you sign up too, so you both win. Which one makes the most sense to ya?"
- 4 Then stop talking.
- 5 Yes → phone, link, card. Book their first session as a member before they walk out.
- 6 Objection → use the objection overcomes in the Sales Training Hub.
- 7 No → be a cool person (they might come back later) and ask for feedback. If you didn't temp-check 'em earlier, this is a good spot to drop that in.

MEMBER EMAILS & TEXTS

Merge tags are set for your GMM / Ops / GHL software. Set the custom values once per account (Settings > Custom Values, see the Setup Checklist) and every email and text fills itself in. Anything in [BRACKETS] is manual. That's for posts and scripts you type in the moment.

Subject: Bring your boo 🤖

Hey `{{contact.first_name}}`,

Week of `{{custom_values.boo_dates}}` we're doing something fun at `{{location.name}}` :
Bring Your Boo! Every one of you gets to bring somebody to train with you free, all week, any session you're already in.

Your boo is whoever you want it to be: partner, best friend, sister, the coworker who's asked about the gym four times and still never showed up :)

Two things:

1. Reply with their name and which session you're bringing them to. We cap guests per session so it doesn't get crazy, so the sooner you tell me, the better your shot at the popular times.
2. If your boo joins by `{{custom_values.boo_deadline}}` after trying us out, you'll get `{{custom_values.boo_member_reward}}` and they'll get `{{custom_values.boo_offer}}` off their first month!

So... who are you bringing?

`{{user.first_name}}`

SMS SMS 1

Same day, ~30 min after Email 1

Hey `{{contact.first_name}}`, just sent over an email about Bring Your Boo (`{{custom_values.boo_dates}}`). You get to bring somebody to train free all week! Only catch is we'll have limited spots in each session, so it's first come, first served. Just reply with their name + which session and I'll save the spot for you :)

Subject: You already know who

Hey `{{contact.first_name}}`,

Boo week starts next Monday and the #1 thing I hear is "I don't know who I'd bring."

You do :) It's the person you thought of when you read the subject line and then talked yourself out of because you figured they'd say no.

Ask them anyway! Here's a text you can send them right now:

"Hey, my gym does a free buddy week and I get to bring one person. Come with me Monday?"

Still stuck? Your partner, your mom, your grown kid, the friend who keeps saying they need to get back into something, or somebody going through it right now who could use a room full of people for an hour.

Reply with their name + session time and I'll hold the spot. A few sessions are close to full!

Fun bonus points? You get another friend to train with for a week, you look like a hero for introducing them to something that'll genuinely improve their life, AND you get

`{{custom_values.boo_member_reward}}` if they end up joining after the free week (don't worry, they'll get `{{custom_values.boo_offer}}` off their first month, too!)

`{{user.first_name}}`

Hey `{{contact.first_name}}`, boo week is next week and a couple sessions are filling up. Planning on bringing anyone? Reply name + session time so we can lock it in before spots are gone :)

Subject: Boo week starts tomorrow!

Hey `{{contact.first_name}}`,

Boo week starts in the morning and runs through Saturday!

If you haven't asked anybody yet, do it right now. Copy this: "Hey, my gym is doing a free buddy week and I get to bring one person on the house. Want to go with me tomorrow?"

Send it, then reply here with their name and the session and we'll get you guys taken care of!

`{{user.first_name}}`

Boo week starts tomorrow `{{contact.first_name}}` ! Not too late. Text me a name + a session time and I'll get them set up to see what their awesome friend (that's YOU) has been up to 🤖

Subject: 2 days left!

Hey `{{contact.first_name}}`,

Lots of BOOS (are we tired of the word "boo" yet?) have come through so far this week and it's been a blast!

Two days left. Saturday morning is the last session to bring somebody to, and there's still room.

And if you brought somebody earlier in the week: their chance to get the buddy rate ends `{{custom_values.boo_deadline}}`, so tell them to grab a coach before they leave!

Thanks for bringing your people in :)

Post the costume photos with it. That's next year's announcement graphic.

RECOMMENDED BOO TEXTS & EMAILS

The first three texts go out by hand from the gym phone (or a coach's), with the blanks filled in. The last-day email, last-day text and follow-up email can be automated: tag each boo BOO when the desk enters them and load those three into a workflow. Or send those by hand too.

SMS TEXT 0 • REGISTERED BY HAND

When they're signed up

Hey [BOO NAME], this is [YOUR NAME] from [GYM NAME]! [MEMBER NAME] signed you up to train with us free the week of [DATES]. You're in the [SESSION TIME] session. Nothing to do now, just show up 10 min early and I'll get you set up. Text me here if you have any questions at all :)

SMS TEXT 0.5 • MORNING OF BY HAND

Day of first visit

Morning [BOO NAME]! See you at [SESSION TIME] today with [MEMBER NAME]. Come 10 min early, wear whatever you'd wear for a walk, bring water. See you soon!

SMS TEXT 1 • CHECK-IN BY HAND

Same day, ~2 hrs after

Hey [BOO NAME], [YOUR NAME] from [GYM NAME]. Great having you in with [MEMBER NAME] today! Just wanted to check in and see how you're feeling after the first session. How's it going?

Subject: Last one

Hey {{contact.first_name}},

Buddy week wraps today!

You don't need me to convince you of anything. You came in, you did the work, and you probably already know whether this is a place you want to be.

Hopefully you feel like you've found your new fitness "home" and you'd like to spend some more time with us...

If it's a yes, awesome! {{custom_values.boo_offer}} off your first month is good through {{custom_values.boo_deadline}}. Be sure to grab a coach before you leave, or reply to this email so we can lock down a quick chat to go over the options (just takes a few minutes!)

If it's not right now, we're still rootin' for ya and really appreciate you spending some time with us. You made the week better and the door stays open :)

{{user.first_name}}

{{contact.first_name}}, last day of boo week! If you want to keep going, {{custom_values.boo_offer}} off your first month is good through {{custom_values.boo_deadline}}. Be sure to grab a coach before you leave, or reply to this text so we can lock down a quick chat to go over the options (just takes a few minutes!)

Either way, great having you in this week :)

Subject: How's it going?

Hey `{{contact.first_name}}`,

No pitch, just curious: did you manage to keep anything going after boo week?

If yes, I want to hear about it! If it fell apart after about four days, that's what happens to almost everybody without a schedule and somebody expecting you.

Either way, reply and let me know. And if you ever want to come back in, you know where we are :)

`{{user.first_name}}`

DON'T SKIP THIS ONE

It gets more replies than anything else in the sequence, and a chunk of your boo-week joins show up here in November. Don't skip it just because the campaign feels over.

NO NEW SYSTEM

Two things you already have:

The sign-up sheet

Who's coming, which session, and who brought them.

Your booking / billing software

Enter each boo as a guest the same way you'd do any drop-in (waiver, intake, your normal process). Put the referring member's name in the notes.

- During the week: boo count on the whiteboard, updated every session. Slip names in the jar every time a boo shows.
- Saturday night: go down the sign-up sheet and tick the columns: showed / came back / talked to / joined. That's your report, and your call list for Nov 13.
- On GMM / Ops / GHL? Tag every boo BOO when the desk enters them so the last-day and follow-up messages can fire. That's all the digital record you need. (Ask your CS rep if you want a Boo Week pipeline set up so the desk can drag a card instead.)

TARGETS

METRIC	TARGET	IF YOU'RE UNDER
Participation brought a boo ÷ active members	15%	Under 8% = coaches likely went light on announcements and on positive callouts when sign-ups happened.
Show rate	75%+	Under 60% = confirmation texts didn't go out, or they got scared away (check your socials).
Repeat visit	50%+	This one predicts everything after it.
Conversation rate	70%+	Share of boos who got a sit-down about the options.
Joined ÷ showed	15-25%

These are planning targets, not industry data. We're collecting real multi-gym buddy week numbers this October. Your year 1 is your baseline, and that's probably worth more to you than anybody else's benchmark anyway.

SYMPTOM → FIX

WHAT YOU'RE SEEING	WHAT'S PROBABLY GOING ON
Day -7, nobody's registered	You announced it in writing and stopped. Coaches ask every member in person this week. Second guess: it read as a favor to you instead of a perk for them. Third guess: you got stingy with rewards.
Registered but not showing	Confirmation texts didn't go out, or came from a number they've never seen. Text from a coach's name 48 hours out + the morning of.
Came once, didn't come back	Experience problem. No email fixes it. Reread "Day 1 for a boo."
Lots of boos, no joins	(1) The conversation didn't happen. Go down the sign-up sheet and count who actually got one. (2) The offer got muddy, with the team quoting different numbers. Or, worst one, (3) the experience didn't live up to expectations. Look hard at your new-client experience.
Day 14: 30 attended, 2 joined	Not over. The owner CALLS every boo who came in: "You came in during boo week, wanted to hear what you thought." About a third pick up and talk. By day 30 it's mostly gone.

DECIDE NOW, PRINT FOR THE DESK

More than one boo per member?	Yes if there's capacity, but make it clear it's a favor so they really try to get their folks in.
Former member?	We'd say yes. Best odds in the building.
Under 18?	Only if you already train minors, and a parent signs in person. No minors policy = no.
Pregnant / post-op / PAR-Q flag?	Normal intake. Boo week doesn't change your screening.
No reservation?	Room = let 'em in and get them registered. At cap = "let's get you into the 6:30, better first session anyway."
Wants to join in January?	Take the January start, with the buddy rate in writing and the January date on it. Note it on the sign-up sheet so they're on the Nov 13 list as a yes.
Waivers	Before they touch anything. No "after the session."

DO THESE IN ORDER

3 WEEKS OUT

- ☐ Make the 4 decisions (Boo Day/Week, member reward, boo offer + expiry, Halloween or not). Write them on the cheat sheet.
- ☐ Capacity: write your boo-week sessions on the sign-up sheets with the boo cap next to each, and cross out the lines past the cap. Add a session if the math says you're short.
- ☐ Name who runs the closing convos. Block Saturday of boo week. Have them read the close out loud once.
- ☐ Plan for extra staffing if you think you'll need it.
- ☐ Pick the drawing prize. Get a jar.

2 WEEKS OUT

- ☐ Tech: set the custom values (Settings > Custom Values). Name them exactly like this and copy the tag GHL shows you:

CUSTOM VALUE	MERGE TAG	EXAMPLE
Boo Dates	{{custom_values.boo_dates}}	Oct 26–31
Boo Start Day	{{custom_values.boo_start_day}}	Monday
Boo Deadline	{{custom_values.boo_deadline}}	Saturday Oct 31
Boo Member Reward	{{custom_values.boo_member_reward}}	$100 off next month
Boo Offer	{{custom_values.boo_offer}}	$100 (just the amount, no words: the member emails say "off their first month" and the boo texts say "off your first month" around it)

- ☐ Tech: load the member emails + SMS into a workflow on the timeline dates.

- ☐ Tech: load the three automatable boo messages (last-day email, last-day text, follow-up email) into a workflow that fires on the BOO tag. (Or send them by hand.)
- ☐ Know how you'll take the card on the spot in your billing software. The close is "phone, link, card," so have the link ready.
- ☐ Staff meeting. Cheat sheet printed + posted. Everybody says "Who are you bringing to boo week?" out loud once.
- ☐ Posters up (desk + bathroom). Sign-up sheets printed (one per day, extra pages if you run more than 3 sessions) with session times + boo caps filled in.

1 WEEK OUT

- ☐ Waivers pre-loaded.
- ☐ Look at the sign-up sheet. Post which sessions are full / open (VIP Post 2).
- ☐ Confirmation text to every registered boo.
- ☐ Decorations if you're doing them. Jar at the desk.

DURING

- ☐ Morning-of text to that day's boos.
- ☐ Every boo in the booking software as a guest, with who brought them. Slip in the jar.
- ☐ Whiteboard count updated every session.
- ☐ Closes booked for every boo who came in twice.
- ☐ Member rewards paid the day a boo joins.

AFTER

- ☐ Wrap-up post + draw the winner.
- ☐ Put Nov 13 on your calendar NOW: call everybody on the sheet who didn't join.
- ☐ Boo Email 2 goes out ~2 weeks after to the ones who didn't join.

BRING YOUR BOO SIGN-UP

Day: _____

One sheet per day (print extras for more than 3 sessions). Members write their name + their boo's. Full lines = full session. Coaches tick the boxes all week; Saturday night it's your report and your Nov 13 call list.
